Feedback about our work...

“Representatives from the Canada Centre for Community Engagement and Prevention of Violence had the opportunity to learn about York Regional Police Service's efforts to counter radicalization leading to violence from Detective Mark Topping, Detective Constable Maryam Alikhani. We are truly appreciative for having an opportunity to learn more about this incredible work which York Regional Police Service is undertaking.”

Feedback about our work...

“It was great to see the really impressive work that your unit is doing - its truly inspiring and is an approach that policing in the UK could learn from, I feel.”

“In a number of other places/countries, hate crimes and CVE are still seen and treated as quite separate, whereas your integrated approach really seems to nail a range of issues that remind us that the boundaries we draw structurally and institutionally are not always so clear-cut in practice...Your intensive focus on one-to-one engagement was especially impressive and also quite moving – I don’t think I’ve seen this anywhere else and it speaks to your expertise and commitment in equal measure in York that you have been able to develop remediative approaches like this to help counter and divert radicalisation to violence.”
